Control of the Pacific Ocean.

ARCHIBALD Colquhoun, a noted British writer and expert on oriental affairs, declares in the North American Review that the only way to insure peace on the Pacific "is to maintain a proper balance of power between east and west, and unless the British empire and the United States are prepared to cooperate, the task will be almost impossible." Mr. Colquhoun holds that the Anglo-Japanese alliance was a gross diplomatic blunder, at least for Great Britain, and his opinions on this subject are now very generally shared by Englishmen. His views are summarized thus:

"By helping Japan against Russia, Great Britain helped Germany against itself. Great Britain today has to reckon with the diminution of its own power on the Pacific and with the destruction of the Russian fleet, both tending to increase enormously the importance of the Japanese navy. The British navy is concentrated in home waters, against the possibility of hostilities with Germany. The old Asiatic stations are almost stripped of British warships, and Japan is left paramount. Meanwhile, Japan has arranged an understanding with Russia, is vastly strengthening its hold on China, and Mr. Colquhoun believes, is secretly for its own purposes fomenting the anti-foreign sentiment among the Chinese. Japan, with Russian co-operation, is endeavoring to compel China to an alliance distinctly anti-foreign."

It is worthy of note that recent dispatches announce a Japanese naval program this year contemplating the construction of five super-dreadnoughts, which will actually exceed in tonnage the total of that to be laid down in British yards this year for England's navy. These Japanese ships will each displace 28,000 tons, and will be armed with 13.5 inch guns. It is expected that these ships will be completed by 1914, and their construction will give the Japanese navy nine "all big gun" ships by that time.

The Board of Supervisors.

THE new Supervisor from the district of Hana, came to the board last week armed with a wonderful resolution. It was all the more wonderful, after the supervisor had been seen in action, as it soon became patent to everyone that the resolution was not his, but had been put in his pocket, he being simply the instrument through which others worked.

The resolution in question makes the Chairman of the board of supervisors, the whole show, and therein lies the danger. This county is and has been fortunate in the possession of honest, conscientious and painstaking supervisors, and the present chairman is without doubt a man of proven ability. This known ability causes us to wonder why he should allow himself to be drawn into any such arrangement.

It is well known to every thinking man that men chaff at dictation. It matters not whether the dictator has or has not the good of the community at heart. It matters not whether he be saint or sinner, the very fact of there being a one man power causes others to see red.

When there is so much internal strife among party workers in the Republican ranks in other counties as at the present time, it seems doubly unfortunate that anything of the nature of the resolution referred to should have been introduced. It was unnecessary from a working standpoint, and it will surely react to the disadvantage of the Republican party. Those responsible for the resolution will, in our opinion, be the greatest sufferers, and the temporary benefits which may be derived, will be swallowed up and lost sight of in the revulsion of public sentiment.

Mr. V. L. Vettesen has started a new printing office in town. This alone shows that Wailuku is growing. We are inclined to think, however, that Mr. Vettesen hardly realizes what he has undertaken. If there is a business which requires the maximum of labor and worry for the minimum of profit, it is the printing business.

What Is Time?

(By William Marsden.)

ASKED an aged man, a man of cares.
Wrinkled and curved, and white with hoary hair.
"Time is the warp of life," he said, "Oh, tell
The young, the fair, the gay, to weave it well!"

I asked the ancient, venerable dead,
Sages who wrote and warriors who bled,
From the cold grave a hollow murmur flowed.
"Time sowed the seeds we reap in this abode."

I asked the dying sinner, ere the stroke
Of ruthless Death life's golden bowl had broke,
I asked him, "What is Time?" "Time," he replied,
"I've lost it! Ah, the treasure!" and he died.

I asked a spirit lost; but, oh! the shriek
That pierced my soul! I shudder while I speak!
He cried, "A particle! A speck! A mite!
Of endless years, duration infinite!"

Of things inanimate my dial I
Consulted and it made me this reply:
"Time is the season fair of living well,
The path to glory or the path to hell."

I asked old Father Time himself, at last;
But in a moment he flew swiftly passed;
His chariot was the cloud, the viewless wind
His noiseless steeds, which left no trace behind.

I asked the mighty angel who shall stand
One foot on sea and one on solid land;
"By heaven's great King I swear the mystery's o'er;
Time was," he cried, "but Time shall be no more."

Eddie Collins, Mack's Great Star

Second Baseman of the Athletics Leading His League
In Batting and Base Stealing

Johnny Williams who is playing with the Victoria team, the tailenders in the Northwestern league, won his game the other day, and the coast papers say he pitched great ball. In three times up he got two hits. He struck out seven men.

Although the Detroit Tigers have gained a big lead, they will not canter home with a pennant, by a long shot. They may win, and are strong favorites just now, but it won't be a runaway race by any means.

The lead they have gained over their seven rivals has about put them in a position where they will have only to break even in the remaining battles to be played. They should do this. But they have been lucky—extremely lucky. This break from Dame Fortune cannot last all the time.

Hughey Jennings has a wonderful bunch of clouters. Their attack is the strongest of any team in either of the big leagues. While they do not play the "inside" ball that characterizes the work of the New York or Chicago clubs, they have to date seldom fallen down with the old-fashioned attack of hit and run from first base, or any old sack, for that matter.

Even in close games the Tiger do not attempt to sacrifice the runner from first to second, or from second to third, in hopes that a long sacrifice fly will count just as much as a hit. They simply go in and slug. Now, this method of offense is immense as long as a team is hitting and luck favors their hoists, but just wait until they start hitting the ball right into the opponent's hands. Then Jennings will be forced to change his style.

Cobb and Crawford are keeping the team up in the race, although Delehanty has been hitting with regularity of late, and especially in the pinches. Take Cobb and Crawford out of the lineup and the Tigers wouldn't be in the first division. It is a two-man club as far as the offense goes. At the same time Oscar Stanage should come in for a little of the calcium. He, too, has been very much on the job with his stick at the opportune time.

The crew of Connie Mack are hitting the ball unmercifully. They outbit the Tigers 19 to 8 in one game in Detroit and yet lost. That shows that either the Tigers were awfully lucky or else the Athletics must have been exceedingly dumb on the paths.

Mack's pitchers are just beginning to display the form expected of them. That tells the story of why they are not up with the Tigers. Coombs, Bender and Plank were expected to do all kinds of things to the opposing batsmen, but they failed. And then the Athletics' catchers have been very much off-color at times and allowed men to run wild on the bases.

It looks as though young McInness has developed into a wonderful hitter. Harry Davis had been schooling this boy to play first base. Harry realizes that his days as a diamond star are about over. So, for the past year, McInness has been taking lessons in the fine art of handling the small mitt.

If the Yankees had not suffered as never a team did before with sickness and injuries, I believe they would be at the Tigers' heels right now.

Comiskey's White Sox are the dark horses of the race. The Chicago bunch has one of the best pitching staffs in the league. Doc White's grand twirling has counted for a whole lot, believe me.

While the Boston Red Sox have been playing good ball, I cannot figure how they can be counted in among the first three. Outside of Joe Wood, their pitchers are very ordinary. Cloutte is a fairly good man, but the others are no bears.

Cleveland has a few promising youngsters, but I cannot give them a look-in for the first division. Charley Somers has but one first-class twirler, and that is Gregg, a left-hander, who has lots of smoke on his delivery.

Washington and St. Louis are not possessed of even first-class minor league material. It will be a great race between them to see which will hold the cellar position.
